THE AGONY ON THE CROSS. An Impressive Service Today at St. Aloysiu Church.

The Good Friday services at St. Aloysius Church today were of the most impressive and somber character. The vast edifice was shrouded in gloom and there was nothing to relieve the sorrowful nature of the exercises Over the long windows was draped heavy black crepe, giving the church a dark and gloomy appearance. The music, too, was of a sorrowful

The program for today includes three services, an early mass, a long service at noon and a Tenebræ with sermon this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Between the early mass and the midday service the chancel of the church was arranged as a reproduction of the scene on Mount Calvary, and the three hours' service was in commemoration of the suffer-ings of Christ upon the cross. The chancel was built up to resemble the summit of the mount and upon it was a large cross with a life-rize figure of the Savior in the last throes of His agony. It was a realistic scene and re-minded one forcibly of the scenes so familiar to travelers in southern European countries where reproductions of Mount Calvary with the stations of the cross are not at all unusual sights. This is the fifth year that St. Aloysius Church has celebrated the ceremonial of the three hours' agony on the cross.

This service began at 12 o'clock and there was a large congregation present. There was an exposition by Rev. John Prendergast, followed by music by the choir and orchestra. This consisted of the Improperium, by Witt, and the Seven Last Words, music by Mercadunte. dante. The service this morning at 8 o'clock consisted of the cele-bration of the mass of the presentified. The celebrant was Father Brett; deacon, Father Fargis; subdeacon, Father Keating. The Passion was sung with Father Fargis as the cantor Father Porta, Christus, and Father M'Ginney ancilla. There was an imposing procession and

THE BERING SEA COMMISSION.

A Quiet Investigation Being Made as to the Allowances Agreed Upon.

It is stated on good authority that an investigation is being quietly made of the expenditures of the Bering sea commission, and it will not be surprising if the conclusion is reached that some of the allowances are extravagant and should be discontinued. These allowances were made by John W. Foster while he was Secretary Gresham has intimated that Mr. Foster was free and liberal with the money intrusted to his care. It appears that everybody connected with the commission from the stenographers down have been given very liberal allowances, which the officials of this administration include under the head of useless extravagance. Maj. Halford is one of those who receives considerate treatment. Besides the regular salary which he receives as paymaster of the army and de-tailed to act as disbursing officer for the com-mission, Mr. Foster has allowed him commutation for rations, quarters and mileage, and also $15 per day for acting as a special officer of the
